Gemsbok - the exotic Shofar

The Shofar of choice is the ram's horn, from a male sheep. But the horns of all kosher animals (not solid antlers, but horns that have a distinct inside and outside) except bovine (cow family) are kosher for the mitzva. Spiral and curved horns are preferred to straight ones, but straight is still kosher for the mitzva. The Gemsbok is a large antelope of arid regions of southern Africa, having long sharp straight horns, a tufted tail, and distinctive black and white markings on the head.
